

UDT goes AGT

On October 23, 2011, UDT took its award-winning FLIGHT 323 production to America's Center. The group of 32 girls shortened their nearly three-minute routine to 90 seconds that hopefully impressed the producers of America's Got Talent.

Auditioning in our hometown was spectacular, an experience completely unique to what we are accustomed. Although different from the typical dance competition, the pressure to perform well was still there. It was also difficult leaving the facility with no knowledge of the results. Acts asked to advance will not be notified until after the first of the year.

Utopia is currently bound to confidentiality rules of the show, and cannot share information beyond this point. We are thankful for our families and fans that accompanied us to the audition with signs of encouragement and support. We are also thankful for those that continue to keep their fingers crossed for good news in 2012.